

The R.H. Stokes Medal

The R.H. Stokes Medal is awarded for distinguished research in the field of electrochemistry carried out mainly in Australasia. (A DVD of an interview with Professor Robert (Robin) Stokes can be obtained from the Australian Academy of Science.)

Nominations should provide an assessment of the nominee's work and list relevant publications. The nominee must consent in writing to the nomination. The Committee reserves the right not to make an award.

Advice of the opening of the award will be announced on the website and via email to the RACI Electrochemistry Membership community.
